The Threads Ban

The Community Revolted. The ban immediately backfired, uniting Rumpelton's active fanbase on DeviantArt, Instagram, and alternative blogs. Within hours, the internet rallied around his core philosophy: The "Rumpeltize" Flood: In protest, hundreds of fans began flooding social media tags with their own crudely drawn, mouse-made MS Paint parodies. The "Void" Boycott: Creators temporarily changed their profile pictures to solid blocks of harsh neon chartreuse—Rumpelton’s signature backdrop color—to stage a digital "Void Stage" blackout.
